Peaceful goodbye By Tim Krueger

Henry Bush Jr passed away peacefully in his sleep on January 19th, 2019. Henry was 94 and was soon to be 95. A sad day for the Bush family and a sad day for the Village as well. Henry and his wife Joanne made Maple Bluff their home for numerous decades. They had four children who were raised here. Many of you living in the Village today may not have known Henry, or his wife, or their children, but they are a part of the generation that helped make Maple Bluff what we are today.

As I make my way toward completing my second decade of service in the Village, I continue to be saddened by the loss of many of these friends who are a bridge to the early days of life in the Village. The Bill Chatterton's, the Warren Dailey's and now the Henry Bush's of the Village, take with them a connection to our beginning that is difficult to replicate. I miss hearing the stories and the details that have made the fabric of the Village so strong. Even though there is sadness with this loss, there is also pride and joy in having known so many of the greatest generation. We all now carry that same torch for the Maple Bluff story. My hope is that you are around as long as Henry was to share the stories of these days and to pass those stories on to that next group to follow us.

Rest Peacefully Henry.

2019 WINTERFEST

Villagers young and old came together for a wonderful Winterfest weekend! The cold weather did not keep everyone away, and a hearty group helped carry on this wonderful tradition. We had a completely full Euchre Tournament at the Beach House with 48 players competing for enormous cash prizes. Some of the usual ringers did not make an appearance, which made room for new people atop the leaderboard! Cardshark Jake Davie came in like a lamb, and went out like a lion in 1st place. He collected $480 dollars in prize money, before we realized that we had accidentally overpaid him by 100%, and graciously returned half of the winnings so that the tournament did not come out in the red. Making a sly 2nd place finish was Bruce Morrow, who played like he had something to prove, having not made an appearance on the podium in the last several years. He came out with a handful of cool cash and just bested 3rd place winner, Trevor Stebbins. Stebbins, a longtime Villager, came with the perfect combination of cunning and joie de vivre and earned another pile of cash. Players and beer maidens feasted on piping hot pizza from Pizzeria Uno and slaked thirst with a lavish spread of Fantasy Factory, vino and champagne. Following the imbibing, wheeling and dealing, we all danced under the magic covering of winter lights. A brand new shotski was constructed for the tournament and christened by some late night Villagers before the long, frigid walk home! Special thanks to planners Ellie Hausmann, Molly Lohr and Kelsey Hausmann for putting on this amazing night!!! High fives should also go out to Katie Waterman, Trish Grant, Sarah Shah, Kristie Palovcsik and Jason Smith for pitching in to lend a helping hand with pizza delivery, setup and registration. We were all so thrilled to meet many new neighbors and this was one of the most fun groups we've had in a long time!

The next day, setup began for the Indoor Winterfest at the Village Center. Co-chairs Ellen Reyerson and Erin Vincent turned the gym into a balloon filled, hula-hooping, glow dance party! Despite it being too cold to partake in any outdoor activities, Villagers enjoyed delicious chili, fixings and cornbread. The chili cookoff field featured fine chilis made by seasoned cooks and previous chili cookoff champions. Tim O'Meara submitted a fantastic white chicken chili that was a fan favorite. This year's cookoff featured two judges, Josh Pelleter and Mayor Anita Mahamed, who spent hours savoring the merits of each entry. Alas, Jeff Masciopinto came out on top this year, after the last few years in a 2nd place. After complaining to his wife, Sarah Groessl, that he was "always the bridesmaid, never the bride" he came in charging with just the right amount of chili pepper. His dark, smoky chili was accompanied by fresh herbs and hand-whipped sour cream -- it blew the judges away and he came away with bragging rights and a Sur La Table gift card! Jeff, in an ultimate show of modesty, even tried to give his lovely wife credit for his award winning recipe, but in actuality, he did it all on his own. This is per his wife, Sarah, who was asked by Jeff to spend the day polishing his chili ladle and waxing his skis. This year's cookoff was, for the first time, marred by voter fraud as a group of enterprising 3rd grade girls tried to flood the ballot box with duplicate votes for Holly Davie's chili. This aroused suspicion, when all of the votes were written in purple glitter pen and gave Holly's chili the maximum # of points available. Better luck next year, Holly. Notably absent from this year's cookoff were past years' fan favorites -- Fronceks' 3C chicken chorizo chili and Paulowski's bacon chili -- please, please, please bring these back!

Villagers did our best in finishing the kegs as we sat under the lovely glow of cafe lights strung about the gym, and had toddler Griffin Smith not been whining about being cutoff from his can of Sprite, we would have felt as though we were in a rustic ski lodge somewhere out west. After chow, we moved on to parlor games, a pinata bash, and finally the Q&A from medallion hider/writer Ellen Reyerson! Village children enjoyed winter-themed crafts, played parachute games, and capped things by turning off the gym lights for a glow-in-the-dark dance party! They lit up the gym with glow bracelets, rings and glasses and convinced the parents to let them stay up late. Special thanks to volunteers Trish and Patrick Grant, Bret Waterman, April Grogan, Jenny Frese and Molly Walsh. Every one pitched in at the very end to clean up the gym -- thank you!!! Raffle prizes were also donated by Ellen Reyerson, Erin Vincent, Sheila Young, Betsy Carpenter, and Emma Henke. Baskets of champagne, boxes of beer, a gaggle of toys, a collection of science kits, and many glitter notebooks were given to lucky winners! Plan on coming next year to get your hands on one of these amazing prizes.

By the end of Winterfest weekend, after much searching and careful deliberation, the medallion was FINALLY found by young at heart Villager, Stan Reed. Stan, of 73 Fuller Drive, had carefully been considering the clues all week. This year's search was a head scratcher, for sure, and made sure searchers checked their history books and thought outside the box! This year's search took Villagers on a quest from the Village Center to the Clock Shop, finally cruising down Sherman Avenue to the medallion's location in a limestone retaining wall just at the crest of a small hill located within the village border. Stan took home a crisp $100 bill, gift cards and a pennant proclaiming him "Best Kid Ever". Congrats!

A big thank you is due to Village of Maple Bluff staff and Firemen, who helped with setup and logistics. We could not do this without you! We hope to return in 2020 with Winterfest as an outdoor event, provided the polar vortex does not make another appearance the same weekend! Ellen Reyerson
